Comments: Some of my students were looking for biographical information about Audie Murphy, so I searched to see if information was available via the net. We need to remember our heroes and the purpose of their sacrifices: freedom. Today we are making heroes of those from the past who were ignoble during the VietNam war. I find myself fighting not to be upset about the changes in our country; yet I truly feel that we are losing the basis for our freedom. Frustrations come because I want to do something, yet I have but one vote. So I pray for our nation, our leaders (whether I like them or not) and our future generations.

Comments: I have been a fan of Mr. Murphy's since I was a teenager. It's wonderful to come across your fantastic web page. Thank you. I did have the pleasure of meeting him one night in Nashville, Tenn. I was introduced to him by country singer Webb Pierce. What a thrill it was for me. I believe I was 23-24-25 years old. He was very kind. We didn't talk long, he was with a group of business men and they were out for the evening. I hope he does get the stamp he rightfully deserves.

His presence on the screen first intrigued me and then learning of his history in WWII really got my interest. It is sad that I am 30 years old and had never heard of him before. I didn't think that I had slept that much in history class. Anyway, I am eager to learn more about Audie and his accomplishments.

Having grown up in San Antonio and later being stationed there, I visited the Veterans Administration Hospital named after Audie and became interested in his life story. I guess I just wanted to know more about his leadership under fire in light of the fact that I will be asked numerous situational questions at the board. Wish me good luck and thanks for helping to keep his important story alive.

Comments: I have just discovered the Biography Web pages and must have missed the Audie Murphy Biography on A&E in June. I have always loved Audie Murphy and even as a child I had his biography. He seemed like quite a hero and all while he was so young. I must admit that I first liked him because he looked cute and young. I was in junior high when he died and my Dad knew I would be hurt by it so he had me sit down when he told me as though a member of the family had passed away. Thank you for the site!

Comments: This is my 1st return to the Audie Murphy web site since I first sent off my petition (I lost the URL). It's good to see the great changes. I'm still disappointed that the USPS has not or refused to make a decision on the Audie Murphy stamp. What really worries me is that our officials feel that others (e.g. James Dean, Marilyn Monroe, Elvis etc.) are honored with stamps, but America's True Hero's are not. I E-Mailed My Congressman, Senator and the President in hopes of putting pressure on the Mr. Runyon to do what is right. I don't know if it did any good. I received no response except from the White House and they agreed to screen my request for possible presentation to the President (big deal!) I have also joined the Audie Murphy Research Foundation and since receiving their newsletter, I have really learned what a fine man Audie was. He genuinely cared about his troops. You have developed a great Web Site and I will pass the URL on so that others my visit and hopefully join in. Respectfully, Tom LaDoux be both inspiring and extremely informative as it relates to one of our greatest military heroes. Audie was trully what all soldiers, NCO's and Officers alike, should strive to become. I take great pride in being a member of an association which has dedicated it's existence to preserving the name and honor of a man who trully gave his all for his country.

Comments: As a military history junky and as a long time admirer as well as a form company commander within the 15th Infantry Regiment, I felt compelled to sign in the guest book honoring Audie Murphy. I agree that to many people and especially our young ones do not realize the sacrifices that Maj(USAR)Murphy and his fellow servicemen made during WWII. The important point to be gained from all of this is that there are still Audie Murphys out in the US who either have not been noticed or have not had the opportunity to display unusual amounts of bravery. I have severed in combat situations and have always been impressed with the quality of our soldiers. Murphy by and large would be proud of them especially in the face of severe reductions of our land forces.

Comments: It is truly a joy and blessing to see our true heroes honored as they should be. This page is a testimony to all (or so it should be viewed) that men like this are not the stuff of fiction, but are in fact men of passion and courage--men of honor. Thank you. You honor all those who serve and served with him, past, present, and future.

Comments: I have read all the books in the base libraries at the many bases we have been stationed. I was hoping this last tour of duty in England, to have had the time to visit some of the villages in Europe that Audie Murphy was in during the war. But unfortantly time and money did not seem to come together. Maybe someday. Sandra bigd@crestview.gulf.net

Comments: Congratulations on a fine website! I am working with Texas A&M University Press for a book on Texas Medal of Honor recipients. Research on these men is sometimes difficult, and many of them are almost lost to history. My approach is to emphasize how they're remembered, which has brought home to me how little they're remembered outside the military - and sometimes not at all. Audie Murphy is, blessedly, not among those - but without efforts such as yours he could be. Thank God for efforts such as yours to preserve the memory of our most decorated soldier! Sue Fox

Comments: The values that Audie Murphy lived by and fought for must be passed on to future generations. He was the soldier whom every American fighting man wants to have beside him in battle - one who fought not so much for himself but for the man to his right and the one on his left.

Comments: I think it's great you're doing this! I'm a former Navy corpsman, San Diego Naval Hospital, 10/66-6/69; 1st Marine Division, 1969-70. I'm quiet about having been in the service, but very much appreciate its value. The friend who told me about your web site wanted to know if I knew of Audie Murphy. I did and only recently saw A&E's Biography on him. I learned more about him on that than I had anywhere else. I mentioned to him that if I could ask Audie any question it would be this and its corollaries; How did you handle in your mind what the consequences of your courage and bravery might be to your life? If you were afraid, how did you handle your fear? Did your anger help or get in the way? Was there some principle you stuck to? I wonder how he did what he did when it "hit the fan"? He faced it so many times and behaved consistently. Did he ever look back at it and separate it out for himself? To do one of these actions is extraordinary. To do several is a wonder. Definitely keep him "alive" for all to see and know. Daniel Coon Comments: I have long been an admirer of Audie Murphy since viewing him in "To Hell and Back", and realizing that it was a true story. His life in a way was epic, and his end tragic. I can only say that you can add my name to the list of those who respected a great man.

Comments: Am a Hollywood journalist (for Entertainment Weekly, etc.) who also writes celebrity biographies. Latest book: "Down at the End of Lonely Street: The Life and Death of Elvis Presley," co-written with Peter Harry Brown. We also collaborated on the 1996 title, "Howard Hughes: The Untold Story." As a writer-film lover interested in American originals, I am naturally familiar with Audie Murphy. Fascinating man: not only for his incredible military heroics, as well as his transformation to an affable Western star, but also for his personal complexities. Glad your website is spreading the word!

Comments: I admire the life that Audie led. Despite his problems, he has proven to be a great example to myself. I recently saw his grave at Arlington and it gave me a deep sense of satisfaction. Currently, I am a senior in high school and Audie's example has inspired me to join the army through ROTC. God Bless Audie Leon Murphy's family and friends and I hope that one day Audie receives the recognition that he deserves.

Comments: Thought I would check back in. The last time I signed the guest book was in May 1997 and was happy to see so many people interested in Audie Murphy...but sad to see that members of the Platoon named after Audie Murphy have not taken the time to sign on and sign the guest book....I feel so proud to have served in the Audie Murphy Platoon from 1973-1977 with B Co 1/15th infantry in Kitzingen, West Germany. I was sworn in to the United States Army in Greenville on the courthouse steps in Audie Murphy's memory....and the tears still fill me inside...I became more of a man that day...18 and looking for direction and a person to give me inspiration and Audie Murphy did that...even in death his presence was always a guiding light for me. I look forward to the day that I will see the other 13 members of the original Audy Murphy platoon on-line and signed into the guestbook. "Seize the Day"
